

Keynote speaker David Wallace-Wells will address how he communicated the dire consequences of climate change to audiences through his book The Uninhabitable Earth: Life After Warming. The book basically contains the same basic information and messages as scientific organizations such as the IPCC have been touting for decades, but he reached a much wider audience, and so, was more effective in his communication. How does David do it?